OUR NON-PROFIT

Wolf Performing Arts Center is a non-profit 501 (c)(3)

In 2005, Bobbi Wolf, founder of Wolf Performing Arts Center, chose to create a non-profit, volunteer-driven, performing arts center that can make theatre education accessible to anyone in the community.

We are a non-profit so we can make performing arts education as accessible as possible to the community through contributed income. We are here for the community with our mission truly at the forefront.

All performances are directed by theater professionals, enhance theatrical skills through the rehearsal process, and boast a polished, professional-level production at the end of the experience.

Theatre Classes

Theatre Classes are offered to preschool-12th grade students during fall, winter, and spring seasons. Taught by professional Teaching Artists, classes include active, engaging, and on-your-feet activities and focus on musical theatre, acting, storytelling, improv and more. At the end of the session, students will come together for a showcase or in class review to share favorite activities and ensemble numbers with an audience.

Workshops

Workshops are offered to preschool-12th graders and focus on a variety of themes such as audition technique, ensemble work, social-skill building techniques, writing and more. Art of Auditioning workshops focus on specific monologues, dance and song and are offered before fall and spring auditions.

Summer Theatre Camp

Throughout our 10-week summer camp season, rising Kindergarten - 12th grade campers and CITs are immersed in theatre programs that focus on making connections, building creativity, and gaining confidence through performance and mentoring opportunities.
